MaleCall. Being a town with a big gay population — both local and visiting — as well as occasional bachelorette parties, it is inevitable that sex sells. And MaleCall — a strip show that recalls the hedonistic days of the late, great Gaiety strip club that I used to regularly frequent on the corner of w46th and Broadway in New York — is done with enough artistry to remove any hint of sleaze. Robert LaFosse, a former principal dancer with New York City Ballet and a Broadway Tony nominee for the original 1989 production of Jerome Robbins' Broadway — is credited as choreographer!
